

Earth Update May 12, 2008

From Channie

Since the last letter a lot of things have happened. There have been 100's of 1000's of dimensional ships that have come to Earth and tried to balance Earth and the grids. But because the dimensional ships are not physical and almost never, ever land on the surface, they cannot bring in the dimensional energy as good as it would be given with physical ships that do land on the surface.

Since the last letter, there have been a lot of small physical ships that have come. And there are 1000's of 1000's of those that have actually landed on crosspoints and special points in Nature that connect the different kinds of ley lines and grids

I have now, not so long ago, understood a little bit more in the way of how they work. In the beginning I didn't quite have the information totally right. I have now understood how they work and what they do. Usually when you mention crosspoints, you talk about points within the 6-point system; the male, female and the middle point within a 6-point system is considered to be crosspoints.

The landings with unmanned small physical ships that have occurred have been outside of 6-point systems. So far there haven't been any landings inside of any 6-point systems because the work that the small ships are doing is to strengthen the 6-point system so its tunnel can reach out in Space and connect with a tunnel outside. Because we are in a pocket of energy within another kind of quality than we usually have been, the connecting point with the 6-point system in the Universe and the one on Earth is a little bit off. Almost like the feeling if you look down in water and you think something underneath the water is gliding to the side. So that means there is a little bit of a difference with the point of flying and getting into the 6-point system. It is a little bit different than it usually is. But it is possible to do it.

The small ships that are flying in, as we have said, are unmanned. Why they are unmanned is because when they land on the crosspoints, they have dimensional energy with them which we very much need. They land on the crosspoints and they sort of pump in the dimensional energy to the Grids and ley lines help Mother Earth, our environment, the climate and frequency of Earth to try to balance the weather, the earthquakes, the tsunamis, and other things that have become a problem when the dimensional energy of Earth is low. When these unmanned crafts land and have given the dimensional energy, it becomes like a backflash of energy from the grid, trying to breathe out the negative, unbalanced frequency. And that overtakes the ship in its frequency. That is why they are unmanned.

So far they have been about the size of a tennis ball, but usually they are bigger, about the same shape as if you were putting your arms out to a circle. Some ships are like the size of a small bus. These different physical crafts could be seen when they land because they are outside of the 6-point systems.

The 6-point systems as of today, May 12, have become much, much stronger. Yesterday and the day before, their energy was a little bit low, before the frequency went up to a stronger frequency. As it is right now it is getting to a point where the 6-point systems will be more stable, in their usually strong energy.

We are hoping it will soon be possible to use the 6-point systems again for the kind of landings that are needed! Because it wouldn't be good to start a massive amount of landings with crafts that would be showing themselves, doing landings outside of 6-point systems. That's why they have waited a little bit. As we have said, it is now getting to a point where there are more stable frequencies inside of the 6-point systems. And it will probably give it a possibility for ships to come in, in a more normal way, soon.

THE GAME

I, Channie, have usually referred to life and the things that happen around us as a big Game that is played and that we all are parts of THE GAME. By things that have occurred in the middle of April, THE GAME HAS NOW BEEN WON! But it now needs to be finished in a humble and graceful way. Everyone needs to do their part in the finishing of THE GAME, in the best of ways.

The fact that THE GAME is won is an enormous achievement! This will bring a whole new possibility for everyone to experience the finishing part in a beautiful way.

I think we should be joyful and happy in our hearts because even though things may still seem not so good, here on Earth, there is still a lot of joy for things that will be happening for everyone and everything, because The Game IS WON!!

Extra Big Hugs,
Channie
